Twas the night before Christmas, I was down in the shop
There were gifts to be made, And no time to stop
The table saw glistened, In spite of the dust,
As I hurried along, Making gifts as I must!
That big green machine, Was earning its keep
I've lots more to do, Before I can sleep!
The planer was roaring, Like a dis-tempered bear
Uncovering the birds' eyes, We knew that were there.
The woodpile was high, With Bubinga and Oak
Ash, Cedar and Cherry. Hmmm, that sounds like a gloat!
When all of a sudden, In the shop door appeared,
SWMBO* with 'the look', That all of us fear.
And I knew right away, That the chips better start flying.
Her patience with me, Was rapidly dying.
I had made her a promise, That gift, trinkets, and toys.
Would be cheaper to make, And more full of Joy.
The DC was choking on, shavings and chips
No time to change bags, and I'm up to my hips.
A little more glue, now to tighten the clamps
How my wife will love this, this year I'll be champs
Just a couple of screws, That does it I think
A really fine job, Now I've earned me a drink.
